IEA warns of much tighter oil market unless OPEC+ boosts supply

Global oil markets are set to “tighten significantly” unless the OPEC+ alliance resolves its standoff and agrees to increase production, the International Energy Agency warned. The group’s impasse threatens to inflict a “deepening supply deficit,” with “the potential for high fuel prices to stoke inflation and damage a fragile economic recovery,” the IEA said in its monthly report. Brent crude is trading close to a two-year high above US$75/barrel. (Bloomberg)

Vietnam needs large-sized corporations

After 30 years of development, South Korea has had hundreds of large-sized corporations, while most Vietnamese businesses are small and medium-sized after three decades of Doi Moi (reform). A recent survey by the Vietnam Chamber of Commerce and Industry (VCCI) shows that very few private enterprises of Vietnam participate in the global value chain, or become suppliers of goods and services to foreign-invested firms in Vietnam. Worse, the number of such businesses is even decreasing. In 2015, about 69% of foreign-invested enterprises purchased input materials from domestic private enterprises. This proportion fell to 62.5% in 2017 and 60.2% in 2018. Similar trends are observed for groups of individual and household suppliers. The proportion of foreign-invested enterprises with suppliers being individuals and households decreased from 19.3% in 2015 to 15% in 2018. Currently, only 15% of private enterprises sell goods and services to foreign enterprises in Vietnam; 8.4% export products directly, and 7.4% export goods indirectly through a third party. This is why there is reason to worry about the global economic integration of Vietnam’s domestic private sector, according to VCCI. Over past years, foreign investment inflows into Vietnam have increased and over 50% of which has been poured into manufacturing sectors. However, the number of Vietnamese enterprises participating in the supply chain of foreign-invested enterprises is extremely limited, especially in industries requiring high technology such as automobiles and electronics. This number is even decreasing, which is quite a surprise as the presence of global value chains in Vietnam is very clear at present. Many economists have acknowledged that Vietnam is one of the “big factories” of Asia. The experience of South Korea shows that, to become a developed country, it could not rely on only small and medium enterprises. Vietnam is no exception; it is necessary to build a team of large-sized private enterprises. Only large enterprises with access to capital and technology can drive growth. (Vietnamnet.vn)
